Customs Notice.

THE following procedure will be followed in the Calcutta Custom House for the levy of duty on raw and manufactured jute when this duty comes into force under the Calcutta Improvement Act:—

1. Shipping Bills.—The form of shipping bill prescribed for dutiable goods should be used (Form 43 at page 192 of board's rules). Shipping bills must be taken out in duplicate for shipments in the foreign trade and in triplicate for shipments in the Coasting trade. One copy of the shipping bill will be returned after presentation to the shipper. This must be delivered to the Preventive Officer on board or (if there is no Preventive Officer on board) to the ship's officer or the Port Commissioners' Shed Officer, as the case may be. The procedure for Foreign exports will in fact be identical with that in force for rice shipments. In the Coasting trade the only difference will be that an additional copy of the shipping bill will be required.

2. Deposit accounts for payment of duty.—It is open to exporters either to pay duty in cash or to maintain a deposit account. The advantage of a deposit account is that it avoids the necessity for adjustments on account of short shipments, etc., the original payment being treated as a provisional debit in the first instance. Subsequently at the time of final adjustment it is written back to the depositor's credit and a debit is then made of the exact amount of duty leviable. Any further particulars required can be obtained on application at the Custom House.

3. Exemption from duty under the proviso to clause 73 of the Calcutta Improvement Bill.—Jute shipped under contracts made before the 15th August (which have been duly registered in the Custom House before the 15th September on their existence being established will not be liable to the duty. Shippers should in such cases note the claim for exemption prominently on the shipping bills as "Exemption from duty claimed under serial No. _____ of Messrs _____ & Co.'s list of free contracts."

4. Manufactured jute.—Within five days after the vessel's departure shippers of manufactured jute should produce either a mill specification, jute mills association contract or details of the Licensed Measurers' weighing in support of their figures as may be most convenient to them. It is recognised that the weights shown in the mill specifications are usually slightly in excess of the actual jute mills association contract weights and any such slight excess will be disregarded. Duty will be charged on the net weight, the weight of the packing being excluded. Where different descriptions of goods are shipped under one shipping bill the net weight of each class should be separately shown.

5. Raw jute.—In the case of raw jute the duty is leviable without reference to any excess over or deficiency in the standard weight of 40 lbs. per bale, and no documentary evidence of the weight of the bales will therefore be required.

6. Collection of duty, etc.—Duty will be calculated to the nearest anna; amounts under 6 pice will be disregarded and 6 pice and upwards reckoned as 1 anna. In cases in which shippers require, in addition to the ordinary Customs receipt, certificates of payment for amounts of Rs. 5 and over a uniform fee of Rs. 1 per certificate will be charged. In the case of payments of less than Rs. 5 no charge will be made for this certificate.

H. P. HOWARD, Collector of Customs.

Custom House, Calcutta, the 14th September 1911.
